Subject: New Resource: Instructional design support for Social Work faculty
Importance: High

Laura Crawley from the Gwinnett campus contacted me and, since CTL may well be swamped with requests for help in getting courses online, has offered Gwinnett's assistant director Ben Hall, as a support to all the faculty at the SSW, whether you teach in Gwinnett or not. Ben has a degree in learning design, and is offering online appointments.

Please see his message below,
Stay safe all,
Anna

Dear Social Work Faculty,

My name is Ben Hall, and I'm here to help you with transitioning your face-to-face instruction to online. For the past nine years, I've worked with students and faculty in the Gwinnett Campus MSW program, and I hold an EdS degree in Learning, Design, and Technology. As an instructional designer and developer, my role is to assist you, the subject matter expert, with the task of creating online course materials that will meet your students' learning needs.

I can help with moving content online, choosing the right tools online, and trying out technology that may be new to you. I can also sit in on an on-line class to provide support. You can schedule a 30-minute appointment with me here:

I look forward to working with you!

All best,
Ben
