RESEARCH EXPERIENCE

2021-Present

Principal Investigator

Evaluation of an Integrated Program of Family Violence Intervention and Substance Use Treatment:

This project aims to test whether an integrative program of family violence and substance use reduces intimate partner perpetration, drug use, and other associated problems more than a family violence intervention program.

2019-2021

Principal Investigator

Primary Prevention of Intimate Partner Violence in Immigrant Communities: Development of a Social Marketing Strategy:

The purpose of this project is to pilot test the methodology for the basis of a social marketing campaign aimed at intimate partner violence prevention.

2018-2021

Principal Investigator

Promoting Victim Safety in Immigrant Communities: Virtual Case Simulation Training for Religious Leaders:

This US Department of Justice Office on Violence Against Women-funded research project aims to develop a culturally specific virtual case simulation training for immigrant religious leaders and evaluate its impact on increasing domestic violence intervention and preventive behaviors that promote victim safety in a randomized study with 100 Korean American religious leaders from Chicago and Washington, DC.

2018-2019

Principal Investigator

School-based Health Center at Meadowcreek High School: Assessment of Student Needs:

This project conducted needs assessment of students at Meadowcreek High School focusing on their health concerns, access to health services, and perception of the need for a school-based health center and explore the connection between school performance, behavioral issues, and absenteeism and health-related reasons.

2016-2019

Co-investigator (PI: A. Abraham, UGA)

UGA SBIRT Interprofessional Training Program: This SAMSHA-funded research project aimed to increase the capacity to address substance use issues in medical, pharmacy, and community settings throughout Georgia by implementing a comprehensive SBIRT training curriculum for health professions students and faculty across three University of Georgia (UGA) programs (Clinical Psychology Doctoral program, Doctorate of Pharmacy program, and Master of Social Work program) and one program (Master of Social Work) at Georgia State University (GSU) and by implementing SBIRT into students' didactic curricula and clinical practice sites.

2016-Present Co-Principal Investigator (PI: H.G. Cho, Michigan State University)
Factors Affecting Help Seeking Behaviors of Victims of Intimate Partner Violence Among College Students: This research aimed to understand the experience of intimate partner violence, help seeking behaviors, and associated factors of college students from six colleges in the US and one college in Canada.

2016-Present Principal Investigator
Contribution of Health Literacy and Culture to Korean American Immigrant Women's Cancer Screening Behavior: This research examined the utilization of clinical breast examinations (CBEs), mammograms, and Pap testing among Korean American immigrant women and investigates how health literacy and cultural factors are associated with the receipt of breast and cervical cancer screening.

2016- 2018 Co-Investigator (PI: G. Bagwell-Adams, UGA)
Athens Wellbeing Project: Collaboratively supervised a team of 68 masters-level social work students in the collection of primary, open-access, neighborhood-level, longitudinal, representative data to support individual and collaborative planning efforts and improve outcomes achieved by local institutions, organizations, and community stakeholders; coordinating efforts among project staff, neighborhood leaders, and student teams; and, contributing to the preparation of scholarly manuscripts detailing service-learning and community engagement.

1/14 – 12/15 Principal Investigator
Online IPV Intervention Training Curriculum for Korean American Faith Leaders: A Randomized Study: This small randomized study tested the effectiveness of an online training curriculum in changing Korean American clergy's knowledge, attitudes, beliefs, and behaviors (KABB) related to domestic violence in general and their responses to domestic violence in their congregations.

7/12-12/13 Principal Investigator
Developing Online IPV Intervention Training Curriculum for Korean American Faith Leaders: This research developed and pilot-tested an online training curriculum based on behavior change theory with Web 2.0 features for Korean American clergy targeting their knowledge, attitudes, beliefs, and behaviors (KABB) regarding their responses to domestic violence in their congregations.

01/10-05/11 Principal Investigator
Determinants of Clergy Behaviors Promoting Safety of Battered Korean Immigrant Women: This research examined how patriarchal, religious, and cultural values of Korean clergy members affect their responses to domestic violence in their congregations.

8/08-12/09 Pre-doctoral Fellow
Safer Sex Skill Building in Pregnant and Post-Partum Women Study, Institute for Drug & Alcohol Studies, VCU: Assisted in an NCMHD-funded research project investigating the effectiveness of an intervention for reducing sexual risk factors for HIV/STD prevention in pregnant and post-partum minority women. Recruit/consent participants, conduct assessment interviews, and co-facilitate group intervention.
Supervising faculty: Dace S. Svikis, Ph.D.

8/07-8/08 Research Coordinator
Modifying Safer Sex Skill Building (SSB) to Prevent HIV in Alcohol Abusing Women Study, School of Social Work, VCU: Oversight and management of an NIAAA-funded randomized clinical trial at residential treatment for substance abuse. Specific duties included recruitment/consent of participants, administration of assessment and follow-up interviews, coordination and delivery of group intervention, supervision of the research assistant, oversight of data collection, and management.

Supervising Faculty: Diane Langhorst, Ph.D.

8/06-5/07

Graduate Research Assistant

Modifying Safer Sex Skill Building (SSB) to Prevent HIV in Alcohol Abusing Women Study, School of Social Work, VCU: Assisted in an NIAAA-funded research project investigating the effectiveness of an intervention for reducing sexual risk factors for HIV prevention in minority women in substance abuse residential treatment. Recruit/consent participants, conduct assessment interviews, and co-facilitate the group intervention.

Supervising Faculty: Diane Langhorst, Ph.D.

8/06-5/07

Graduate Research Assistant

Project TAPS, School of Medicine, VCU: Assisted in a research project investigating the effectiveness of a trauma-informed at-risk drinking group intervention for minority women in a community based medical setting. Participant recruitment/consent, survey administration, and data entry.

Supervising faculty: Anika Alvanzo, M.D.

8/02-1/03

Consultant

Fact Sheet: Intimate Partner Violence Among Asian & Pacific Islander Women, Asian & Pacific Islander Institute on Domestic Violence: Conducted literature review of information, research, and resources about violence against women in Asian and Pacific Islander communities and created a resource database for use by researchers and practitioners.

7/01-4/02

Research Associate

Work-related Issues and Everyday Life: Re-thinking a Focus for Social Work Interventions, The Institute for Labor and Industrial Relations, University of Michigan: Assisted in a research project exploring how employment-related issues are addressed in social work practice. Developed a survey questionnaire of clinical social workers and conducted quantitative and qualitative data analysis.

Supervising Faculty: Larry Root, Ph.D.

5/00-4/01

Research Assistant

Mom's Study, School of Social Work, University of Michigan: Assisted in a research project investigating the relationships between mothers' mental illness and child custody loss. Conducted qualitative data analysis of taped interviews.

Supervising Faculty: Leslie Hollingsworth, Ph.D.
